EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The primary mission of WIMS Consulting is to help your company generate more revenue. We can provide a lot of different services, create and implement a robust strategy, and execute each tactic, but everything that we do truly boils down to that one single objective.

Despite what you may have been told, there is no one single magic formula or one size fits all approach to doing that. Rather, there are countless methods to help you generate and convert new leads and prospects, to retain your existing and new customers, and even to transform them into referral sources. The key is to find the specific combination that works best for your company and then to relentlessly focus on executing it.

A goal without a plan is just a wish, thus everything we do is meant to be measurable, KPI (Key Performance Indicator) focused, metrics-based, results-oriented, and top and bottom line enhancing. We are dedicated to staying ahead of the curve by always learning the latest and most innovative best practices along with the most efficient way to implement them.

The role we can play will vary based on your company's existing and/or desired structure. WIMS Consulting can function as your fully outsourced Marketing department, your existing CMO or Head of Sales support team, or simply a service provider or extra set of hands on a specific project. We even often work in conjunction with existing marketing agencies when needed.

Each project that we work on contains a completely customized pricing structure that is based on a variety of factors. We start with an estimated hourly rate, factor in the costs of the required resources, and do our best to anticipate the amount of time each project will take before providing you with an estimated budget in our subsequent proposal. We have done projects simply based on a set hourly rate, and others based on a pre-determined flat price as well. The point is that we are very flexible and willing to work with you and your company to ensure that you receive maximum value and ROI (Return on Investment) on each and every project we assist you with at a reasonable price.

WIMS Consulting would love the opportunity to assist you and your company with creating and implementing its marketing strategy, CRM program, and/or on any projects spanning across the variety of services we provide that are elaborated on throughout this document and on our website.

CRM & MARKETING AUTOMATION

CRM (Customer Relationship Management) systems are the present and future of business, and they aren't just for Fortune 500 companies anymore. They've become much more affordable for small businesses as well. Nowadays it's crucial to be able to turn vast amounts of data into insights and competitive advantages, while simultaneously improving customer service. CRM systems can increase sales by improving lead generation activities, help you design better products and services, and reduce supply chain costs. It will improve your decision-making by identifying new markets opportunities, and by improving your business processes and communication throughout your company.

Yet, while the benefits of CRM's are well-known and undeniable, implementing them appropriately can be quite challenging and time consuming, not to mention expensive if not done right. In addition, it's important to keep in mind that the cost of a CRM system far exceeds that of just the user license fee.

Each platform can be an extremely powerful tool in their own right despite often being a bit tedious to set up, implement, and be adopted by its users. The majority of existing CRM programs such as Salesforce.com, Zoho, InfusionSoft, etc. are fairly robust out of the box, but they do need to be customized to fit the desired needs and specifications of your company's customer database and sales operation. But when the appropriate resources are allocated, and a true commitment is made, the ROI will be astounding.

Creating and customizing your CRM program will help with the delegation, and eventually the automation of target market research and corresponding with clients and prospects among other activities that occur in the sales process. It will help improve the reporting abilities of your sales professionals, allowing the creation of customized sales metrics in an on-demand fashion. Leveraging a CRM system will tie them all together and turn the valuable information they provide into action, which will yield tangible results.

Implementing a CRM project is best accomplished in a tiered/phased approach which will not only help to increase business in the short-term, but lay the ground work for an effective system that will provide value long-term as well. It can help improve communication internally throughout the entire company, create more effective sales and marketing strategies, forecast upcoming sales revenue, enhance supply-chain management and enterprise resource planning, and cut down the time spent conducting market research.

Creating and conducting customized training programs is one of our specialties that we take very seriously. We can provide an in-person or on-demand launch of the training program, followed by remote training sessions. In addition, we create and provide customized resources which will be made available online in a client portal designed specifically for your company's users.

The 10 Steps to building a successful CRM program:

1. Conduct “audit” of existing processes and database.
2. Clean up existing data to avoid the dreaded trap of “garbage in/garbage out.”
3. Code database to more easily identify priority contacts, ABC.
4. Sales cycle analysis.
5. Customize CRM pages, fields, and layouts with appropriate specifications.
6. Marketing automation and campaign creation.
7. Training of users/administrators.
8. Reporting.
9. Sales forecasting.
10. Ongoing maintenance, monitoring, and improvements.

We will turn your business into “Big Brother on a Budget”!

PROJECT MANAGEMENT

WIMS Consulting can act as your long-term outsourced project manager, or on an ad-hoc project basis as they arise. Our solutions are customized and flexible based on the client's specific needs. Whether you have a system in place that needs some minor tweaks, or if you want to start over from scratch we can help. If you want to migrate to a new software platform, we got you covered.

Our primary objective is assisting you with improving your critical decision-making processes, streamlining your operations by enhancing efficiency, improving accountability, encouraging clear communication, and ultimately increasing your ROI.

Our Process

The WIMS project management service line is centered around the mission and goals of the client. To begin, we conduct an informational interview, or discovery call, where we take a deep dive into the organization's operations to get a better understanding of the existing project management systems and policies in place (if there are any). During this due diligence phase, we learn what the client thinks is working, what isn't, identify bottlenecks, and learn as much as we can.

This initial conversation will help frame the service and solutions proposed through having a candid conversation to understand where the organization is at and where it desires to go. When this method was undertaken internally, we included some of the questions included below.

Project Management Audit

We provide an audit of your organization's existing internal processes. After this due diligence phase, we then take the time to thoroughly review and assess. Once this is complete, we come back to you with recommendations and next steps that we believe would lead to the most appropriate project management system for your organization. Before implementation however we will review it together to make a cohesive decision that includes the buy-in and commitment from both of our organizations.

Sample Questions:

1. Describe your current project management/day-to-day operations process. What are three main points that stand out?
2. Who is involved in the project planning process? Include all key stakeholders/administrators/decision makers, etc.
3. What software (if any) are you using?
4. What type of budget and resources do you have to solve this problem?
5. Have you ever lost a project or not bid on one because of your current internal project management process? Have any other negative experiences occurred because of it?

Of course, this is just a high-level overview of what is ultimately a complex process. We'd love the opportunity to connect with you and your organization to learn more about your specific project management/operational needs and how we can assist.
